The Egalitarian Hash

Where sobriety in moderation is tolerated

Trash Volume: Lusty

Run Number: 204 4 August 2023
Hairs: Wishing Well and Maggot
Weather: Slight Cloud and No Rain
Afters: High Quality with Conflagrations.
Score: Excessive 5 (before food)

Haemorrhoid and Two Fathers leapt immediately to the front of the pack as it meandered in a downhill manner to the first right turn through someone's yard to the precipitous pathway

Cassic Potato Point Peregrinations

down to the boat ramp and beach with its footprints in the sands of time

Note the distance!! And the time it took (for the front ambler) And it still got a positive integer score.

The weather was pretty fair (again - another triumph for the stand-in-temporary-unpaid-higher-duties RA).

until someone noticed the markings had disappeared and a bit of milling around occurred before a skerrick of flour was spotted, dragging the pack towards the scrubby dunes where Likalottapuss and Too Keen were gingerly finding their way in the lead

At around about the appointed starting time there was an assembly of numerous returnees and at least one from last month. In the absence of the GobbleFeets, fashionably late duties were performed by Mighty Aphrodite.

The returning GeeEmm Haemorrhoid called the pack together for some chalk talk from the hairs and appointed JR as run (walk) rapporteur. (Score above) Advice was that it was a medium length trail, with the walkers about 200m behind the runners, clear marking, some girt bits, some foresty stuff and a pictureskew drink stop. And on out that way (down hill - appropriately). Some of which was true.

Going Downhill Fast

and SueEllen fell A over T.

About now it got sorta messy. The pack lost trail again for a while as DUI went one way and Wishing Well gave no hints and the pack leaders (see above) sorta searched fruitlessly for sign until there was an indication of possibility that it went in here which it did for a while but by the then the hair was tending to the halt and lame (SueEllen) and one or two others who were hoping she was also on (a short) trail.

In the meantime, Tree Rooter and Tree Shadow were exhibiting superior bushperson type skills in finding an actual marked trail that led eventually to the road outta Spud Point, up past the fire shed and along a precipitous undulating bloody trail under the power line where we had to seek shelter from mad trail bikers. By now the GeeEmm was mainly in the lead, with occasional forays by Likalottapuss who also kept a solicitous eye on the elderly JR and 2F who were panting along assiduously rearwards and regretting the choice not to take an early diversion with SueEllen and Wishing Well in the direction of the drink stop.

By now the remnant pack was also missing Too Keen and was getting a bit strung out as it took a turn for home at about the 1.5 hour mark passing the elephant tree (well, if you sorta squint and imagine...)

and through more scrubby stuff, past a bit of a lake, onto another beach, into the wind, up onto the point, through a confusing maze of tracks and at bloody last! to the drink stop cunningly hidden in the scrub which Blue Hawaii was using for cover and we were reunited with Too Keen and the fashionably delayed Mighty Aphrodite who had found each other and emerged triumphantly from the OnIn direction. Drinks were taken.

From there it was a mere stroll to the finish, which resembled the start, a couple of fires and a well stocked bucket or two

A dodecahedron was formed, charges were charged, drinks (well, Tun) were drunk, the anthem was correctly and lustily sung and then we all adjourned for a superior selection of comestibles prepared lovingly by Polly.

Then it got dark.

Then it was breakfast time.
