

Run Number: 205 2 Sept 2023

Hair: Infallible

Weather: Infallible Spring like

Afters: High Quality with Copious Red

Score: 10 (Thanks GreenFinger)

The weather was perfect. The RA claimed credit. Some strange bloke turned up but left the walk at an early point. He did bring a bottle of (indifferent but later consumed) red though. But I digress.

Following a sabbatical in Europe and Scandinavia the RA returned to preside over the weather and set a run in the more pictureskew bits of Malua. A curious pack assembled and awaited destructions from the hair, who gave them. Key bits: 3 and yer on; there is a drink stop; wankers behind the runners (if any); on out that way towards the sea.

The pack lurched off. The GeeEmm led. FishFinger took up position very near the front, a possie he retained to the drink stop. Too Keen and Double Fister chattered along in harmony and Mighty Aphrodite wondered what she had to do to avoid the odd bloke who brung the red wine and seemed intent on joining the pack. BlackDog tried to confuse him by noting Mighty had received gender reassignment from her original cis bloke status. He left after that and a pause at the adjacent sewage vent.

Anyway, the remaining pack checked out some girt bits along the cliff before heading down the precipitous tortuous perilous pathway to Malua Beach. On their arse in some cases. Or backwards displaying tradie's bumcrack (fortunately not captured in closeup on film) in others.

But no-one broke anything, much to the disappointment of the waiting camera operator.

By now even the lad from Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerychwyrndrobwlantysiliogogogoch (it is much easier to say Just Richard) was in the mix as the pack gambolled across the silken sands of Malua Beach under the watchful eye of the hair and Bunz, before heading for the bowl (or nearly - there was a sharp left up to the scrub via Jarrah Way. At about this time FishFinger, followed shufflingly by Two Fathers, burst into a near gallop which was maintained all the way to the drink stop conveniently located adjacent to an emergency assembly point (pointed out by GeeEmm and 2F - others could not care less) where Doggy Bag and Just Jude were waiting with beverages and comestibles.

After a mere half an hour the pack stumbled down hill in a meandering way to the start finish point and a loosely formed circle under the illusion of control of the GeeEmm.

For some reason and within fewer hours than his 60th birthday speech in Bali, GreenFinger awarded the run the nearly unprecedented and possibly never previously achieved score of 10. Millennial Double Fister was toasted for making it to her fifth decade and Mighty Aphrodite was similarly serenaded sibilantly and simultaneously for another birfdee. The opportunity to send her off on holiday with FOYC wringing in her ears was unaccountably missed. The dog ate my homework on the rest of the charges.

Then it was up the stairs for afters. They were good and there was red wine. And music. And then we went home.
