It was that sorta day really. Only a slight digression.

Well, Meat n Easy arrived 20 minutes early, only to discover the Hair was about an hour behind time. (Something forgotten by the time charges were layed.)

The stand-in RA Two Fathers failed in his efforts to ward off the precipitation as Zeus took on his Pluvius role and tried to flood the joint. But (and here I quote from Peeping Pervert's run report) "the markings were robust" which I think means most of them were still visible to the pack. But I am getting a head of myself (who said head..?).

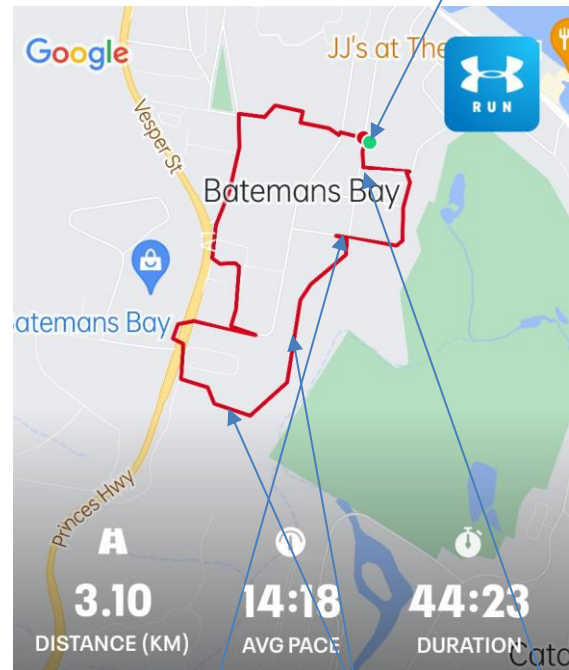

By starting time at 3pm Australian Eastern Standard and Queensland Time, even Mighty

MBH3 <https://mbh3.wombathole.com/>

Aphrodite had arrived, Relaxed had raided the household rain jacket supply to supply the optimists with protection, we knew Cowboy wasn't coming, Infallible was lounging in Rome and the defeated Carlton supporters were licking the wounds in some pub or winery in Melbourne, while Winnie was still grinning, so there was no reason to delay the start.

Short chalk talk, switch on Google map and off into the gathering gloom. If a picture is worth a thousand words, this might save time and reading.

Started here:

Meat n Easy headed off to the first corner.

Haemoroyd wisely followed them. So did Too Keen

About here the FRBs went ahead while Meat n Two Fathers went searching for trail past the Scout Hall. (Suck Cess Fully. Not even knowing about the drink stop see more later)

The rest of the pack with Kan Doo and Biggus Dickus labouring in the rear eventually followed, up through a bit of shiggy about here and here

Going Downhill Fast

Before lurching out onto the flat bit near the cemetery (inserts new copy of map) here

while an anxious and solicitous Mighty Aphrodite stood waiting to assist. (And a good thing, too, because BD was well astern and puffing like a 90 year old with mesothelioma or jet lag.) Then, bugger me if it was only a 100m or so to the finish at the red dot here and where the hair (who musta had some divine guidance) had moved the original drink stop from Crackatunny Park (which is down there somewhere). Funnily enuff, the drink stop, (at which the featured drink was Margaritas in keeping with the Mexican theme and led to lip, sip, suck noises although no navels were exposed as part of the ritual but I digress) was eerily close to the garage at Likealotta and Relaxed's. By quincidence, that is where the circle was to be located.

Biggus Dickus liked the flowers so did a bit of judicious grave robbing before the pack headed out and took their life in their hands crossing the highway here before Meat was dragged back from Bunnings to follow Too Keen and Easy who had found trail here and they were led astray by Haemoroyd who wandered off looking for trail here while Two Fathers, Party Pie and Mighty Aphrodite discovered trail here then ducked up the alley near Tyre Torque here and heading for the old van park and Backpackers' camp here where it started to piss down.

Quick conference. Decide to... ummm... look for a short cut which went here near the water gardens, (where trail was rediscovered in a non-Morrisonian miracle and then it was only a short scramble up a precipitous precipitous perilous perpendicular muddy bank here where Meat stood by to help the lame, halt, wounded and old scramble up

So, the GeeEmm convened a circle. (It conveniently stopped raining for this bit) Peeping Pervert noted the markings were robust (see somewhere earlier), gave a fail mark to the stand-in RA, noted positively the inclusion of a cemetery, said something else positive and awarded a score of -1 (since adjusted for other factors: Ed). And they drank.

Other charges followed. So did the anthem. So did dinner and some drinking. And a call from Pugwash to complete the evening. (Well, a Brumbies win did that)

Em tasol orly finis.
